Military Thrift Store Tax Exemption Extended Through 2023

Sacramento – Purchases of used items from thrift stores located on California military bases will continue to be exempt from sales and use tax until January 1, 2024. Legislation supported by the California State Board of Equalization (BOE) extended this exemption that was set to expire on January 1, 2014.

This sales and use tax exemption will apply to thrift stores operated by the Navy-Marine Corps Relief Society on bases in San Diego, Twentynine Palms, Miramar, Camp Pendleton, Port Imperial Beach, Port Hueneme, and Lemoore. These thrift stores sell nominally-priced used clothing, uniforms, and household goods to military families and Department of Defense employees, including retirees and civilian contractors. The stores are closed to the general public.

The income from sales at these stores supports relief services to Navy and Marine Corps communities on and near their respective bases. Board Members unanimously supported the legislation extending the sales and use tax exemption to provide tax relief for military customers at these stores.
